CHAIRPERSON'S FOREWORD

It is my honour and privilege to present to the House the Consolidated Third Quarter Progress Report of the Liaison Committee of the National Assembly, covering the period January to March 2026, the First Quarter of the Fifth Session of the Thirteenth Parliament. The report consolidates the activities, achievements, challenges, and recommendations of all forty-one (41) committees of the National Assembly, comprising twenty (20) Departmental Committees and twenty-one (21) Select Committees.

The breadth of committee activity during this quarter reflects the industry and commitment of the Members of this House. Collectively, committees held six hundred and thirty-one (631) sittings, tabled fifty-seven (57) reports, and undertook over seventy (70) field and foreign visits. Committees considered Bills, Statutory Instruments, legislative proposals, statements, petitions, treaties, and budgetary instruments giving full expression to the legislative, oversight, and representational mandate of this House.

A defining feature of the quarter was the scrutiny of the 2026 Budget Policy Statement and Supplementary Estimates No. I for FY 2025/26, with all twenty (20) Departmental Committees submitting reports to the Budget and Appropriations Committee within the required timelines. The Finance and National Planning Committee and the Public Debt and Privatization Committee jointly conducted public participation in all thirty (30) counties on the proposed partial divestiture of Safaricom PLC. The watchdog committees examined hundreds of Auditor-General reports spanning multiple financial years, with the Public Investments Committee on Governance and Education taking decisive action to halt the irregular allocation of 2,000 acres of Egerton University land and expose the illegal diversion of Ksh 600 million from development to recurrent expenditure. On the international front, the Committee on Diaspora Affairs and Migrant Workers secured a commitment from the Russian Government to halt the illegal recruitment of Kenyan nationals into the Russia-Ukraine war.

Notwithstanding these achievements, this report documents persistent cross-cutting challenges that continue to constrain committee effectiveness. Thirteen (13) committees cited a chronic shortage of meeting rooms, over two-thirds reported budgetary constraints limiting field visits and public participation, and nine (9) reported quorum challenges. Delayed and inadequate responses from Ministries, Departments, and Agencies, a growing legislative backlog, and shortages of basic stationery further undermined committee productivity. I urge the House, the Parliamentary Service Commission, and the National Executive to accord the accompanying recommendations the urgent attention they deserve. Committees cannot effectively discharge their constitutional mandate without adequate resources, functional facilities, and the full cooperation of the Executive.

I sincerely thank all committee chairpersons, members, the Clerks, and the Secretariat staff of the Directorates of Departmental Committees and Audit, Appropriations and General-Purpose Committees for their professionalism and dedication in producing this report.

HON. GLADYS J. BOSS, MGH, MP

THE DEPUTY SPEAKER & CHAIRPERSON, LIAISON COMMITTEE

PART ONE

PREFACE

This report constitutes the Consolidated Quarterly Progress Report of the Liaison Committee of the National Assembly for the period January to March 2026, covering the First Quarter of the Fifth Session of the Thirteenth Parliament. It is compiled pursuant to the mandate of the Liaison Committee under the National Assembly Standing Orders, which require all select committee chairpersons to report periodically on the work of their respective committees.

The report is presented in two parts. Part I consolidates the quarterly progress reports of the twenty (20) Departmental Committees of the National Assembly, compiled by the Directorate of Departmental Committees. Part II consolidates the quarterly progress reports of twenty-one (21) Select Committees, compiled by the Directorate of Audit, Appropriations and General-Purpose Committees. Together, the two parts provide a comprehensive picture of parliamentary committee activities undertaken during the reporting period.

During the quarter under review, committees of the National Assembly were actively engaged in the scrutiny of legislation, oversight of the national budget, examination of the 2026 Budget Policy Statement and Supplementary Estimates No. I for FY 2025/26, consideration of petitions, processing of statements, examination of audited accounts and financial statements of public entities, and engagement with a wide range of stakeholders from government ministries, departments, agencies, civil society, and the public.

The report documents significant legislative achievements, including the tabling of multiple committee reports, extensive public participation exercises conducted across the country, high-level stakeholder engagements, and field visits to verify the implementation of government programmes and projects. Committees also participated in international conferences, benchmarking visits, and parliamentary diplomacy engagements that strengthened Kenya's bilateral and multilateral parliamentary relations.

Recurring challenges identified across committees include inadequate committee meeting rooms, budgetary constraints limiting oversight activities, quorum challenges, delayed responses from government ministries and departments, and frequent rescheduling of meetings by accounting officers and other stakeholders. The Liaison Committee trusts that the recommendations contained in this report will receive the necessary attention from the relevant authorities to enhance the effectiveness and efficiency of parliamentary oversight.

The Liaison Committee wishes to express its appreciation to all committee chairpersons, members, and the secretariat staff of the various directorates for their dedication and commitment in preparing this consolidated report within the stipulated timelines.

3. Standing Order 200 further requires the Committee to receive quarterly progress reports from each select committee, compile the reports and submit a report to the House within twenty-one days.

PART FIVE
CROSS-CUTTING THEMES AND OBSERVATIONS

CHALLENGES

355.A review of the quarterly reports submitted by all forty-one (41) committees reveals several recurring themes that cut across both departmental and select committees. These themes reflect structural and operational challenges that require systemic attention from the House leadership and the Parliamentary Service Commission as follows; -

(1) Budgetary Constraints and Austerity Measures

Budget limitations were cited by over two-thirds of committees as a constraint on their ability to undertake field visits, capacity-building retreats, stakeholder engagement outside Nairobi, and international benchmarking. Committees noted that quarterly caps on budget disbursement further limited planning flexibility, particularly for activities scheduled later in the quarter. The Sports & Culture Committee noted that austerity measures specifically prevented planned activities from proceeding.

(2) Quorum Challenges

Quorum deficiencies were reported by nine (9) committees, namely Defence, Intelligence & Foreign Relations; Justice & Legal Affairs; Labour; Regional Development; Trade, Industry & Cooperatives; Tourism & Wildlife; National Cohesion and Equal Opportunity; Parliamentary Broadcasting and Library; and Diaspora Affairs and Migrant Workers. Members' concurrent membership on multiple committees was identified as the primary driver, with scheduled sittings conflicting across committees, particularly on days when the House also sat in the morning.

(3) Delayed and Inadequate Responses from MDAs

Committees across both parts of this report noted persistent delays in receiving responses to statements, audit queries, and committee requests from Ministries, Departments, and Agencies. The Public Accounts Committee, PIC committees, and several departmental committees highlighted instances where accounting officers submitted inadequate or vague responses, or cancelled scheduled appearances at short notice, undermining the integrity of the oversight process.

(4) Legislative Backlog

Several committees reported a growing backlog of Bills, legislative proposals, mediation proceedings, and petitions. Bills committed to committees in earlier sessions remain unprocessed notably mediation proceedings that have not yet held their first sitting (e.g., Employment Amendment Bill in Labour, Mung Beans Bill in Agriculture, Start-Up Bill in Trade). This backlog risks delaying the delivery of the Fifth Session's legislative agenda.

(5) Audit Backlogs in Watchdog Committees

(i) The Public Accounts Committee, PIC committees, the Special Funds Accounts Committee, and the Decentralized Funds Accounts Committee collectively noted significant inherited backlogs of Auditor-General reports, with some audit queries dating back to financial years as far as 2007/2008. The volume of audit reports relative to the sitting time available to watchdog committees remains a structural challenge that limits timely scrutiny.

(ii) The Liaison Committee draws the attention of the House, the Parliamentary Service Commission, and the National Executive to the foregoing cross-cutting concerns and urges that the accompanying recommendations be addressed as a priority in the interest of strengthening parliamentary oversight and the effectiveness of committees in serving the public.

PART SIX

RECOMMENDATIONS

356. Arising from the performance review of the forty-one (41) Committees and the cross-cutting themes set out in Part Five of this Report, the Liaison Committee makes the following recommendations; -

(1) On Budgetary Allocation to Committees

The Budget and Appropriations Committee in consultation with Parliamentary Service Commission ensures adequate budgetary allocations to Committees to safeguard effective oversight and representation.

(2) On Legislative Backlog

The Liaison Committee, in consultation with the House Business Committee, ensures all pending business before the House is scheduled for debate before the end of the current Session.
